SAU 50 HIGHLIGHTS

The Joint Board held their last meeting of the year last Wednesday, May 27 at Maude H. Trefethen. During the meeting, the Joint Board heard a presentation on digital guardrails and strategies to support student safety in online environments. The presentation was a culmination of grant-funded work across SAU 50 and 52.

The presentation highlighted the importance of establishing healthy boundaries for technology use, promoting responsible digital citizenship, and helping students navigate social media safely. The Joint Board members were provided with information on available digital safety tools, parental controls, and monitoring resources, as well as educational materials designed to help families engage in meaningful conversations with their children about online behavior, privacy, cyberbullying, and social media awareness.

SAU 50 ANNOUNCEMENTS

Greenland Central School recently hosted educators and related service providers from across SAU 50 for an emergent literacy training. Led by the experts at Gray Consulting & Therapy LLC, the session placed a special focus on supporting our complex communicators.

The session was filled with strategies designed to break down barriers to literacy. Participants left the training inspired to return to their classrooms with a shared mission: ensuring every student, regardless of their communication style, can truly see themselves as confident readers and writers.

Several SAU 50 staff members recently attended a TEDx event in Portsmouth, where they had the opportunity to hear from a variety of speakers sharing innovative ideas, personal experiences, and perspectives on leadership, education, and community engagement.
